Quarterly Newsletter

The Mission of the Idaho Rural Health Association is to provide leadership on issues related to rural health in Idaho through advocacy, communication, and education.

Idaho Rural Health Association Update

At our January IRHA Board meeting, Carol Taylor, a consultant funded through the National Rural Health Association, reviewed the newly developed IRHA Board Orientation Manual and reviewed board development strategies. IRHA Board Members developed a strategic plan focused on improving advocacy efforts, building membership, improving visibility, and providing education and networking opportunities. See page 3 for details.

Other topics discussed included the NRHA Policy Institute that four IRHA members will be attending the end of January (see below for details). The IRHA Board will be meeting at the following dates and locations in 2009:

Tuesday, April 21, 2009 11 AM to 4 PM - Twin Falls, Idaho
Thursday, July 2, 2009 11 AM to 4 PM - Grangeville, Idaho
Wednesday, October 28, 2009 11 AM to 4 PM - Pocatello, Idaho

IRHA Delegation Attends Rural Health Policy Institute

A diverse group of Idaho Rural Health Association (IRHA) members including Joe Cladouhos, CEO, Syringa General Hospital, Grangeville; Ryan McAllister, Rehabilitation Director, St. Luke's-Idaho Elks of Twin Falls; Stephanie Hansen, Health Program Specialist, State Office of Rural Health and Primary Care, Boise; and Kathie LaFortune, Pediatric Physical Therapist, Moscow, attended the 20th Annual Rural Health Policy Institute on January 25-28, 2009 in Washington, D.C. "Change must come to rural healthcare, too" was the theme of the institute and speakers addressed the need for access, quality and equity in rural healthcare. According to Hansen, "the change in administration preceding our trip bought new enthusiasm and energy to the conference. After attending the Policy Institute, I have renewed belief that legislative changes will occur in the near future that will have a positive effect on the rural health community in Idaho." IRHA Provides Support for Rural Community to Fight Meth Use

Picture compliments of Tim Trainor St. Maries Gazette Record

In St. Maries, community members had been talking about the growing meth problem in their county. When IRHA approached a St. Maries civic organization about holding a community rural health forum on methamphetamine use, its members jumped at the idea. Last April, IRHA board member and rural director at the Family Medicine Residency of Idaho, David Schmitz, MD, provided an educational forum to members of the Benewah County Community Coalition. The coalition group includes educators, law enforcement officials, healthcare providers, counselors, and business owners. Using materials from Idaho Meth Project, Schmitz presented on the serious health effects associated with meth use. Afterwards, he hosted a discussion among the 21 participants. They discussed ways to “unsell” the drug and strategies to reach youth in their community.

A second presentation to the larger community was made later that week at the local high school to more than 50 teens and their families. Following these successful educational events, St. Maries community coalition members continued to meet and organize additional meth education events in St. Maries and outlying areas over the year.

Partnering with the IRHA helped the St. Maries coalition bring the power of education to their community to fight against meth use.

The rural healthcare portions of the Stimulus Bill were a hot topic during the institute; however, healthcare reform will be the focus of the National Rural Health Association (NRHA) in the year to come. NRHA’s message to Policy Institute attendees and to Congress is...as healthcare is reformed, rural can’t be left behind.

Armed with policy statements provided by NRHA and our own personal stories of providing health care in rural Idaho, the IRHA descended upon Capitol Hill. Four visits to Senate and House offices in the course of five hours left little time for much beyond getting through security and making it to our meetings on time. We asked Senator Risch to join the Senate Rural Health Caucus and also invited Representative Minnick to join the House Rural Health Care Coalition – and both agreed! We met with health care liaisons for Senator Crapo and Representative Simpson who were already familiar with the importance of funding for provider education, increasing health care coverage for rural Idaho residents, and the unique challenges facing critical care hospitals in the areas of access, information technology, and workforce shortages. Though the current focus of both branches of Congress was on the current stimulus package, our voices were heard, and as health reform takes priority in the next few months, rural health care will not be left behind. McAllister stated, “meeting face to face with our legislators is great opportunity to help them understand how the legislation they create affects the delivery of healthcare in Idaho. We shared firsthand the unique challenges of healthcare we face and encouraged them to make the health of rural Idahoans a priority.”
